You are a goblin who uses a uber like contractor app to go to a location and trash that shit up

The player is a goblin who runs and scampers around maps that are always big circles, avoiding robots. They gradually gain money and can buy upgrades

The robots have one attack, A missile with loud siren or warning and either a ray cast line or a light)
- Ideally the visual should also show how close it is to being charged, increasing rotation speed of the lights, or a ray cast line gradually changing colors from blue to red
- The player is able to throw items at the missile as a means to avoid them

The upgrade system is shown as the player buying stuff off craiglist but it's thematic funny shit, a mix of entirely cosmetic and actual stat increase

Car $30 – changes the loading screen from a wallpaper to a gif of the goblin bumpin in a car

$50 a pair of reeboks pumps – lets you jump faster and a little higher

$40 – Get yur nails done – You got some nasty ass claws to throw shit with now

$20 protien powder – lets you pick up biggerish items and throw faster

3 maps- meant to be able to run around without stopping

A suburban home w/ small yard
Shaped like a cylinder within a small square has a shed in the back thats hard to get into

Warehouse
Shaped like a large square with a few small outcrops
The player can climb between the stacks
The small outcrops are stuff like common area, kitchen, office, bathroom

Office
Shaped like a Figure 8
The inside houses the boss but in order to get the key it's a quest you have to do with the man in the vent